

Citizens Asked To Donate As Hospital Fund Drive Begins

Hospital's Future May Depend On Response To Drive

The Morgan County Hospital Board has been warned that unless the county comes up quickly with additional local funds, construction of the long-sought West Liberty Hospital will be delayed—perhaps indefinitely.

As a result, all Morgan County citizens are being asked this week to contribute to a drive to raise the needed funds.

Members of the county hospital finance committee and local Kiwanis Club members this morning began soliciting donations from business places throughout the county.

In addition, a radio marathon to raise money for the hospital is being planned and will be held this Saturday over Station WLKS.

And since the proposed hospital will serve a five-county area, contributions are being sought from surrounding counties.

The fund-raising projects mark the beginning of a crash drive to raise money needed to buy a site for the hospital and to provide initial operating expenses once the facility is built.

Needed immediately is $26,000 to purchase the site.

This money must be raised within the next few weeks to keep pace with federal time-tables and insure the release of more than a million dollars in federal grants which have been earmarked for the project.

More than $13,000 already has been pledged by local citizens and civic organizations. But hospital board members concede that in addition to the $26,000 for land purchase, considerably more money will be needed to provide initial operating costs after the hospital is built.

All contributions above the $26,000 figure will be earmarked for operating expenses.

Board members say frankly they now feel that success or failure of the two-and-a-half year hospital drive now depends on the public's response to the current emergency.

Additional fund-raising projects are being scheduled and planners say that county-wide participation in the drive is essential.

A special coupon for the convenience of those wishing to mail donations for the hospital is located elsewhere on this page.

Or, persons wishing to contribute to the fund should contact any of the following finance committee members: Judge Gene Allen, Mrs. C. K. Stacy, Glen Woodward, Bernard Hill, Joe W. Haney, Douglas Howard, Roy Nickell, Dr. Alec Spencer, Woodrow Stamper, R. (Continued on page eight)

SCHOOL CLOSING DELAYED 8 DAYS UNTIL JUNE 10

Supt. Walton Jones announced this week that Morgan County schools will dismiss for summer vacation on June 10, eight days later than originally scheduled.

However five calamity days have been granted and a three-day spring vacation which had been scheduled for April 13-15 has been eliminated, leaving only eight days to be made up.

Weather conditions accounted for nine of the lost school days, Jones said, and seven days were lost during the work stoppage.

The new loan, combined with a previously approved $250,000 loan for a micro-wave system to speed long distance calls, makes a total of more than a million dollars which will be spent in a two-year period to upgrade the entire system, Mr. Hill said.

Hill said installation of the micro-wave system will be commenced as soon as a site for a micro-wave tower is approved by the Federal Aeronautics Administration.

The micro-wave system will enable an unlimited number of long distance calls to be placed simultaneously and will speed up long distance service in the areas served by the system.

Bulk Of Funds Earmarked For Direct Dialing

When completed, Mountain Rural's facilities will be as modern as any in the United States, Hill said. The only new advancement the system will lack will be touch-tone dialing.

He pointed out that direct dialing will enable any subscriber in the system to dial direct to almost anyplace in America.

"When subscribers dial direct," he said, "they can place their calls cheaper. It is less expensive to dial direct than to go through an operator, and is also faster."

Contracts for installation of direct dialing equipment are expected to be let this summer and the project is expected to be completed sometime in 1971, Hill said.

Appalachian Aid Spawns Problems, Too

BY HARRIETTE S. ARNOW

"What happened to all that federal money we were going to get?" Is often heard in parts of Appalachia. The speaker, often angry, usually disappointed, is referring to the Appalachian Regional Development Act of 1965.

Some neither question nor comment, for by no means are all of the more than 15 million inhabitants of West Virginia and parts of the nine others states that make up Appalachia in need of help. The 150,000 square miles of farms, forests, worked-out coal fields, towns and cities is a world of contrasts. East Tennessee, for example, with thriving cities, much industry, and high levels of income and education, needs little help.

Only a few miles away on the Cumberland plateau in Kentucky, rotting coal tips, slag piles, weed grown railroads, falling-down miners' shanties — many still inhabited — mark the graves of once-busy mining towns.

The miners know the great days of coal cannot come again. Many subsist on welfare; most complain; some, after taking job retraining, are still unable to find work. All had lost the jobs of many miners, would be stopped, but work goes on.

There are in Kentucky, different from West Virginia, few attempts being made to reforest or check the erosion of hillsides ruined by strip mining. The average operator finds it cheaper to pay the small state fine than do the reclamation required by law.

Less dramatic and seldom seen by outsiders because of roads impassable in most weathers are the areas of small, worn-out hill farms. Many are deserted, but it is among the remaining farm families that poverty, both of the individual and his community is deepest. The subsistence farmer, different from the miner, never knew prosperity.

We hear most of Kentucky's out-of-work miners, yet in Eastern Kentucky, an important mining region, there are more farmers than miners, over 30,000 farm families. Many in recent years had incomes of less than a $1,000 while the average value of products sold per farm was only slightly more than $1,800. These figures do not include the large number with acreage too small or farm sales too low to qualify as farmers in the last census.

Yet, in many of these impoverished communities millions of dollars have been spent on a federal project useless to most and a calamity to many. It is difficult in such communities to find anything but complaints of the limited-access, superhighway that has disrupted their world. Different from the old W.P.A. Roads, the building of it did not give employment to jobless local men. The work was done with big machines worked by men who came and went with the machinery.

Read finished, most of the poorer farmers are afraid to risk their old cars and battered pickups among the newer, speedier vehicles of tourists, truckers, travelers and the county's well-to-do. Access to the new highway is so limited that those whose destinations are on the other side must often drive many extra miles to reach a crossing to a road that will take them to the country store, church or school, once only a short distance away. The basic need of most backhill farming communities is for better local roads, but this need has not been met. Thanks to various state and federal agencies, conditions have improved in Eastern Kentucky for many farmers as well as town dwellers. Still, the man with only a few worn-out acres can seldom get a government loan or take advantage of a soil conservation or reforestation subsidy. His children, unable to attend a consolidated school because of poor roads, can seldom share in any of the most popular programs such as Head Start or a hot lunch at school, made possible chiefly through federal aid.

Yearly, the worn-out fields of the small farmer produce less; in desperation he goes at last to the city, already overcrowded with such as he and his. It is in our northern cities among civic leaders, educators and social workers that one finds the most disappointment and worry on why educational standards and job opportunities have shown so little improvement in Southern Appalachia.

A better educational and economic environment for the hidden hollows of Appalachia would alleviate some of the visible burdens of the cities.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Courier—
I would like to compliment Mrs. Wells on her article written a few weeks ago. In her article she said that we should live one day at a time. Her article has been inspirational to me. There are too few articles written today with a spiritual message and I hope Mrs. Wells keeps up the good work.

THE AMBULANCES STOP ON JULY 1

BY HERALD & STEWART FUNERAL HOME
POTTER FUNERAL HOME

For almost 35 years, our funeral homes have provided ambulance service for West Liberty and Morgan County. Always on a below-cost, almost free basis.

But, cost of equipment is constantly rising. We are affected by the Minimum Wage and Hour law. Moreover, we must have employees on call 24 hours a day to give this service which adds more to the expense.

So, each of us have decided that it is no longer practical to offer and operate an ambulance service. Therefore, our services will be discontinued on July 1, 1970.

Our most important contribution to you and other Morgan County families is to provide you with facilities, staff and professional experience for arrangement of a perfect final tribute. This is what you expect at time of family need. And, we are continually dedicated to fulfillment of that need with all the warmth, human understanding and skill at our command.

OBSERVATIONS
PREDICTIONS

NEWSMEN HURT — NBC news correspondent Chet Huntley says that journalists are being "assailed and ridiculed" more than at any time in history and that "it may take years to undo the damage which has been done." Referring to recent "efforts, stemming both from exalted and more modest places, to impede the free and untrammelled flow and exchange of ideas," Mr. Huntley said that because of such attacks newsmen will have a difficult time making "our fellow citizens understand what the function of journalism in a free nation is." He defended the right of the journalist to use judgment about a given development.

CIGARETTE SMOKING — Cigarette consumption declined three percent during 1969 but the per-capita cigarette smoking declined five percent, says the Agriculture Department. And an A.D. Department analysis says he looks for the per-capita cigarette use to drop by another 6 1/2 percent this year. Cigarette smoking is declining and chest cancer and emphysema are "increasing alarmingly," say the anti-smoking campaigners. They never take into account that the carbon monoxide and hydrocarbons of auto exhaust are killers too, and are increasing alarmingly.

DEADLY FUMES — Man can survive several weeks without food, seven to ten days without water, but only four to six minutes without air. Carbon monoxide from autos and trucks kill silently and quickly if confined in a garage. Yet, people survive in smoke-filled rooms from cigarettes. Its the car exhaust that is killing Americans in greater and greater numbers. But TV commercials have misled them to believe it is the fault of cigarettes. And the campaign goes on, financed by millions in gifts to the Cancer Society, the Heart Association, the TB Association, etc., which probably took the money without thinking there are other killers more deadly. And auto exhaust is increasing daily.

OIL AND GAS NEWS

The gas well drilled in by Range and Wheeler last week on Oldhouse Branch near Crockett reportedly logged a flow estimated at a million cubic feet. Drilling contractor Paine Rice of Oil Springs drilled the well in on the Frank Wheeler lease. Gas flow was reported from the corner.

Meanwhile, speculation increases that Ashland Oil is getting ready to drill another deep test either at Isonville or at Stephens in the Back Bone section of Elliott County. However rumors circulating earlier this week that Ashland had commenced erecting a rotary drilling rig at Isonville have proved unfounded.

Never touch an appliance and a water faucet at the same time. If the appliance is not properly grounded the result could be a shocking experience.

FRANKFORT
WATCHLINE

FRANKFORT — The Kentucky Education Association surely stands at the crossroads. And the route it takes must affect us all.

Once so potent that it literally shook state administrations, the KEA now faces a fight for life in its present form.

The extent of its breach from a large segment of the public is reflected in portions of a statement by President Kenneth Estes:

"We have been ignored and trampled by both parties and yet at the same time we have retained faithful friends in each party."

"We have been deserted and betrayed by the leaders of the Kentucky School Boards Association and yet counted several board members sympathetic to our cause."

"We have watched with regret the widening rift between higher education and public education, and classroom teachers and school administrators."

"Teachers have been kicked around in Kentucky politics as long as they can stand it."

Dr. Estes' idea is for teachers to do some kicking themselves.

He wants "an independent political arm of our profession which will determine the political candidates which a unified profession will support for the next election."

He also warns of a lawsuit to knock out the rollback law on property taxes and the possible reviving of sanctions.

The 30,000-member organization may well pull off even such a difficult triple play.

But to reach significant long-range gains it must bind up plenty of wounds, open better lines of communication with the public and face some distasteful facts.

It's true that teachers often have been blamed for everything from parents' failures to administrators' stubbornness.

But it's also true that Kentucky's educational structure often has proved highly unresponsive to the people, more interested in form than substance, and spawning empires instead of educators.

Whether right or not, Gov. Louie Nunn surely spoke for a big segment of the public when he said:

"If they'll stop talking about salaries and start talking about education, the salaries will come along."

On other fronts, there's a post-Legislature return to normal.

Former Gov. A. B. "Happy" Chandler is talking of running again to save Kentucky from four years of misrule.

Those poverty-type budgets for state universities have produced a $2,500 raise for at least one president — to $3,500 a year.

The Highway Department is spending $1,350,000 for advice on how to save money.

And the jostling inside the administration to get in line for the governor's race is stepping up.

House GOP Leader Harold DeMarcus curbed his colorful tongue much of the session, quietly handling the governor's strategy.

But in the final days a young Democrat got under his skin.

Two years before the Democrat had sought his help, DeMarcus told the House, adding:

"Being the great and generous soul that I am, I stood right here and made the greatest speech that ever passed the lips of mortal man — and saved the gentleman's bill."

One representative startled reporters by promising "to coin an old phrase."

Stratigraphy-re-evaluation and correlation of Morgan County Area; Oil and gas sands, pays, zones, horizons.

This type of report is one that can never be completed, as new wells are constantly changing the picture.

Evaluation of Morgan County's oil and gas pay zones and horizons—SALT SANDS—under 90% of Morgan County. I have passed it up several times in wells that had oil or gas in this sand. 12 ft. pay in western part of county, oil and gas and water in White Oak / Cane / Cannel City areas.

GAS in second salt sand in eastern part of county. Gas and oil shows in Stacy Fork area.

SALT SANDS, general — Several pay sections under most of Morgan / Elliott / Carter Greenup / Wolfe / Laurel Jackson and Owsley counties. Under one-fifth of Powell County; one-half of Rockcastle county; one-fourth of Pulaski county; and under most of Eastern Kentucky from Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia thinning northwesterly.

Names used over the years for pay horizons — Beaver, Norton and Pike salt sands in Elliott County.

First oil found in Johnson County (80 hbls.) Wages, Zones and Epperson.

Oil in Magoffin, Knott, Floyd, Elliott, Knox, Morgan. Salt sands mostly synclined in nature. Knott and Floyd County's nature is mostly basin/synclined as to structure where found. Fractured and shot wells also flow easily. Use gas push first then water.

NEXT WEEK—Mauch Chunk, Mississippi in Morgan and East Kentucky.

MORGAN BURLEY — Morgan County's 1,158 burley-growing farms had 156,177 acres of burley bases last year, but produced only 152,433 acres of burley. Thus, 47.4 acres of base lay fallow in Morgan last year.

TELEPHONE CENTER — Bell Telephone Co. announced plans to triple its Paintsville exchange at a cost of $1,135,000 and install direct dialing mechanism for 28 cities and communities of northeastern Kentucky. When Bell's $3.8 million project is completed, phone customers in the Paintsville and Big Sandy area may dial their own long-distance calls. To be benefitted are these exchanges — Allen, Elkhorn City, Ft. Gay, Inez, Louisa, Martin, McDowell, Paintsville, Pikeville, Feds Creek, Neon, Stone, Virgie, Wayland, Whitesburg, Freeburr, and Prestonsburg. Western Electric will install the long-distance self-dialing equipment.

LOWER INTEREST RATES — Big banks in New York, Pennsylvania and California reduced their prime interest rate from 8 1/2 to 8% last week and the stock market took a 16-point drop the same day. Two days later two Louisville banks dropped their prime rate to 8% likewise.

LIMITING MEDIA OWNERSHIP — The Federal Communications Commission issued a new rule restricting ownership of radio and television operations "to prevent undue influence on local public opinion by relatively few persons or groups." Under the rule issued and effective immediately, owners who now have more than one broadcasting operation in a single market can keep all their stations but cannot in the future, with certain exceptions, acquire another facility in the same community. The FCC also said it will extend the restrictions to force the dismantling of combined newspaper-broadcast operations within five years.

KENTUCKY SCHOOL BOARDS ASSOCIATION unanimously adopted resolution "urgently" recommending the Kentucky Education Association withdraw its request for a National Education Association investigation to determine if sanctions should be imposed on the Kentucky school system. The NEA has already conducted a preliminary investigation as part of the NEA's recent legislative campaign for an increase in teachers' salaries, removal of the property-tax and similar benefits. NEA sanction would attempt to rally a teacher and business boycott of the state.

WINCHESTER FIRM, Juett Construction Co., has been awarded largest contract to date for road relocation in connection with construction of the Cave Run Reservoir. Congressman Carl D. Perkins said U.S. Corps of Engineers advised him the $2,077,743 contract calls for re-locating for 7.8 miles of Ky. 801 in Rowan County. The contract is largest made outside of construction of the dam itself, although it is estimated re-location of Ky 801 in Bath and Menifee counties may run higher.

WURTLAND (near Greenup) will get a new manufacturing facility. The Du Pont Company announced the plant will be built on a site where the company first built a sulfuric acid plant in 1927. Some 50 employees will be required in the production of Microfoam Sheeting, a foamed polyolefin material with wide packaging, cushioning and thermal insulation applications.

TO HUM AGAIN — The I & N's crack southland passenger train, the Hummingbird, may be humming again between Cincinnati and New Orleans. The Interstate Commission has ordered L & N to resume the Hummingbird. However, the case is still in litigation, and the southland passenger train may not get rolling as soon as vacationists would like. At present there is only one southland passenger train through Kentucky—the L & N and Penn Central's "South Wind". Penn Central's run from Chicago has been cut to every other day, and the three Chicago cars are attached at Louisville. At Birmingham a section of the train turns off for Florida, the other going on to New Orleans.

FRANCHISE CHAINS — Kentucky is becoming the center of franchise chains for restaurants and food service establishments. Kentucky Fried Chicken, headquartered at Lexington, made the first big spread; then two more followed. Now a fourth has been organized with headquarters at Richmond. It is Cape Coder System, Inc. which franchises the Cape Cod Restaurants featuring fresh sea foods. The corporation has offered 200,000 shares of stock at $10 per share. E. R. Begley of Richmond is president, and he says the company already is operating restaurants in Kentucky, Ohio, and Illinois, and plans further expansion.

LOCAL NEWSPAPERS — The community and suburban weekly newspapers are growing in reader interest because of their local news, editorial comment and local advertising, says the University of North Carolina after making a survey. "The local weekly newspaper that carries brightly news of local happenings is growing in size and carrying more advertising," says the report.

MOREHEAD, Rowan County — Rowan Water Board of Directors has been authorized to seek a federal grant of around $200,000 and borrow not more than $500,000 (probably from FIAA) to supply PH water to the area from Sharkey west to Farmers; east from Ky. 32 to Lewis County supplying the Cranston, Pine Grove etc. sections; and from U.S. 60, south on Ky. 32 supplying the Elliottville, Christy Creek vicinities.

OIL AND GAS — Look for some interesting announcements in oil and gas for this area soon. One company dropped its leases this spring, and Shell has been grabbing them up to add to its 100,000 acres or more of leases. Spring weeping may bring another deep-test in the area.

NOTE OF APPRECIATION FROM ALLEN'S REST HOME — The senator citizens of Allen's Rest Home wish to thank Dorothy Wheeler and her Fifth Grade Class for the Easter basket of fruit and candy. Thanks also to Ruby Hill and her Sunday school class from the West Liberty Christian Church for the candy baskets to each of the 27 patients in the home. The gifts were greatly appreciated.

Drive safely in traffic — it might be your own life you save.

Mountain Rural Telephone Looks To The Future

We at Mountain Rural are looking to the future of our area with anticipation and confidence. We are planning today to meet the needs of tomorrow of our people for the best possible telephone service.

We have confidence in the future of our service area and its people. The fact that we plan to spend over a million dollars over the next two years to up-grade and expand our facilities reflects this confidence.

All of our subscribers will benefit from these expenditures. The improvements which we have planned will include:

1. DIRECT DISTANCE DIALING

This service will be available in each of our seven exchanges. Direct Distance Dialing means that a subscriber can dial almost anywhere in America as quickly and efficiently as you now dial a local number. Since this type of call will not involve an operator, the cost to the subscriber will be less.

2. IMPROVED LONG DISTANCE SERVICE

Our long distance service will be improved for all exchanges. These improvements will include a completely new system for Hazel Green and Campton. A microwave system will be built to serve Sandy Hook, Jephtha, Ezel and West Liberty. Additional circuits will be added to the Frenchburg exchange.

3. EXPANSION

Our existing facilities will be expanded to facilitate extending service to those areas where our present facilities are inadequate.

All of this means changes for us and for you. But these changes will result in better telephone service for our service area.

It means change all right—but the kind of change we must make—for the better—for the future.

UPPER CROCKETT

By Hattie Ferguson

March 21 — Looks like spring is beginning to peek around the corner. The frosts are singling their best. The peewee birds are here. The daffodils are beginning to open. The crocus are blooming and the tulips are up and growing. Yesterday I saw a bluebird with a straw in its mouth. I saw a groundhog on the hill too.

We are saddened by the death of one of our oldest Upper Crockett neighbors. This time it was Lan Lyons. Our sympathy goes out to his family and his many friends. He was 85 years old.

Mrs. Roy Hintonson has been sick again. But she and Roy are back home now, but she is not well at all.

On our way to Freddie Ison's yesterday we saw as we passed Leonard Barker's that a dozer had been helping him build his pond.

Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Ison have sold their farm and moved back to Pock's Creek near his old home place. Tivis is with them. They have a new trailer. It looks real nice. We hope to visit them soon.

My husband and I visited our children and families recently. Frank's in Cincinnati and Lowell's in Fairborn. I had never visited Lowell since they moved from Ironwood Drive to Country Acres. We all like this place much better. Our good neighbors, the Gerald Carr family, came and took care of our livestock for us while we were gone.

Morgan Man Has Electrical Burn

Ferguson suffered burns of his legs and head and was transferred to the Lexington hospital from Maddox Clinic at Campton Tuesday night.
